From the Covington Enterprise.

A Confederate Concern.

We publish in another column, the prospectus of THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION. The proprietors are W. A. Hemphill and E. Y. Clark. They were classmates in the University of Georgia, and belong to its Alumni. They both stepped from the College into the Confederate Army. Mr. Hemphill was severely wounded at the terrific battle of Gettysburg—lying upon the battlefield for days, and he will bear to his grave the marks of his devotion to the "Lost Cause." He recently led to the altar, one of Covington's loveliest daughters. Col. E. Y. Clark entered the Confederate army in the ranks, campaigned with John Morgan in Kentucky, and under Longstreet in Tennessee and Virginia, and came out of the war at the head of a regiment. He too, is connected with Covington, as he lived and went to school here for several years. Our young lawyers, A. B. Simms and L. B. Anderson, of Covington, were his schoolmates. Colonel I. W. Avery, chief editor, was also a Confederate soldier, and commanded a regiment in the Western Army. He received several severe wounds from which he has never fully recovered. Being cognizant of these facts, we pronounce THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION a Confederate concern. Read the prospectus.

Prominent Insurers.

The following names are taken from a list of those who have insured their lives for the largest amounts in this country. Mr. T. Hotchkiss, of the firm of Hoyt, Sprague & Co., New York, is insured for $165,000.

W. N. Switzer, of St. Louis, insured for $300,000.

H. J. Kimball, of New York, for $250,000.

Alexander Barrett $200,000. John Horne, of St. Louis, $300,000. L. Whittaker, of Chicago, $200,000. E. G. Obear, of St. Louis, $140,000, and W. H. Newnan $150,000.

Georgia Matters.

Covington and its neighborhood was visited by a ground soaking rain a few days ago.

General Wade Hampton is confined to his bed by a serious attack of sickness, said to be the result of extreme prostration. His wife is also suffering from a violent attack, said to indicate paralysis.—Savannah News.

From every part of Floyd county the report from the crops are unfavorable. Corn, wheat and oats almost a complete failure—the cotton is late and the prospect unfavorable. The Skating Rink at Rome will soon be opened. Boating popular on the Oostanaula river.—Rome Commercial.

Peter Henry, a colored man, was seriously stabbed at the Freedman's Church in Bluffton, last Sunday night. Messrs. J. R. Scott & Co., have purchased the block at the corner of Gilmer and Montgomery streets, in West Point, and intend building on it. The improvements will consist of four stores and a warehouse.—West Point Shield.

The Court House at Fairburn, is progressing rapidly, the building will be completed at an early day. The Chattahoochee river is very high about Campbellton and the vicinity around. The corn crop on the bottom lands on the river is considered destroyed almost entirely. The R. E. Lee Club, of Atlanta, gave an interesting concert at Fairburn last Wednesday night.—Fairburn Sentinel.

There is not a single case of yellow fever in Augusta. Under the order requiring the hogs to be removed from the above city between two and three thousand took a "new departure" on Wednesday, and went to the country or the butcher pens. A lad named Meyer, some fourteen years old, employed in the bar-room of Henry Kennedy, of Augusta, suddenly fell dead while attending to his duties in the establishment.—Chronicle and Sentinel.

The physicians of Savannah, in a card dated August 31st, deny that the yellow fever, so far as their observation is concerned, is in the city. The signatures to the card are headed by Dr. R. C. Arnold. The amount of cotton, both upland and sea island, weather with its value, exported from Savannah for the year ending August 31st, is 459,180 bags upland—value $31,699,435; and 2,417 bags of sea island—value $391,374.—Savannah Advertiser.

A camp-meeting is progressing at Salem Camp Ground, 7 miles from Covington. Col. T. Cleaveard will deliver an agricultural address, Covington at the monthly Fair on Saturday, the 9th inst. Mr. W. S. Floyd, son of Lon. J. J. Floyd, received a dangerous wound a few days ago, by the accidental discharge of his gun, sending the charge through his hand. Improving at this time. Dr. F. J. Cheney had his left arm broke near the wrist, by a fall from his buggy. Thomas M. Tasher, formerly of Newton county, died in Florida on the 20th of August.—Georgia Enterprise.

Additional information from Southwestern Georgia and the two lower tiers of counties to the Savannah river, convinces us that the corn crop will be largely deficient. Shall again be compelled to draw from the Western crib. P. M. Wilkinson, of Twiggs county, met with a fatal accident at Willingham's Mill, in Dougherty county, last Monday. The belt caught his leg, winding him around the shaft, tearing out the thigh at the hip. He died in about five minutes. The cotton crop of Southern and Southwestern Georgia is a disastrous failure. Mrs. Callaway, of Dougherty county, has a hen which has laid an egg every day since the first day of March last.—Albany News.

A few days ago the office of R. D. Cole & Co., of Newnan, was entered and the iron safe was robbed of $20. Friday night the saloon of Mr. Hayden was entered and robbed of about $10 in silver, a pistol and a few other articles. The Amateur Club of Newnan are to give an entertainment at Hogansville. The sound of the hammer and trowel is heard in Newnan; a number of houses have been built recently. Captain Sargeant is preparing to erect a brick warehouse. The Presbyterians will soon lay the foundation of a new brick church, and the Methodist will begin building a church at no distant day. One sank will commence business in less than ten days, while another will speedily follow suit. A colored troop Monroe, fought nobly with shot and a stick, at a colored church meeting Sunday night in Newnan.—Newnan Herald.

A barbecue was given and an enthusiastic meeting held last Wednesday, at Greenville, Meriwether county, in the interest of the Alanta and Columbus Air-Line Railroad enterprise. Speeches were made by Col. W. H. Harris, J. C. Kimball of the firm of H. I. Kimball & Co.; C. A. M. Allen, of Columbus; Col. J. M. Obley, of Hamilton; Col. Peoples, of Atlanta Mr. Kennedy, the engineer of the Mose Kimball, and by W. T. Revill. Col. Harrigave the substance of a letter from ex-Gov. J. E. Brown, to the effect that he was in poect sympathy with the Air Line, and was in favor of liberal city subscription from Atlanta to the Company. Up to Thursday, between $60,000 and $70,000 of stock had been taken. Planters complain a great deal in regard to the shortness of the [illegible] crop in Troup county. LaGrange has a buggy-wheel thief.—LaGrange Reporter.

The number of deaths by the accident on the Eastern Railroad of Massachusetts, have reached 30. The pecuniary loss to the company is $75,000, and suits have been intituted against the railroad to the amount of $150,000.

Political News Items.

Andy Johnson will not depart, but says that the new amendments must be obeyed.

The humiliating spectacle of Ulysses Grant toadying to the office-holders of the country is going on daily.

The Police Department of Chicago in 1865, cost $169,117; to-day, under the increased expenses and taxation of Radicalism, it cost $562,261.

The vote of North Carolina, on the 3d of August, is officially announced as being 183,359. For Convention, 86,700; against Convention, 95,232.

The address of the Boston young Democracy says: "We must have it understood—briefly, broadly, and comprehensively—that we are for the National Constitution as it is."

During the delivery of a speech at Springfield, General Butler had several spoons, enclosed in an envelope, passed up to him, seeing what it was, he slipped it quietly into his pocket.

The contest for Governor of Ohio is becoming more and more animated. The point of interest is really the Legislature, as a Senator is to be elected. At present the indications are favorable to the Democracy.

The Governor of Texas calls into service for twenty days prior to and during the coming election, appointed for the 3d, 4th, 5th and 6th of October next, twenty special policemen in each county, and orders them to receive $3 per day as their pay. There being one hundred and thirty counties, this costs the people $187,200.

The Democratic State Central Committee of Massachusetts have published an address calling for immediate organization for the campaign. The address says: "Now most of the questions growing out of the war have been settled—taken from the field of politics and become matter of history. Let us fully acquiesce, accepting the settlement as final. Democrats are no longer called upon to act on the defensive only. We are again, as of old, the party of progress and advance.

The certain and rapid disintegration of Radicalism becomes more apparent every day. Confusion, rivalry, hatred and resentments are manifest in its ranks. Butler dictates his terms to the party in Massachusetts, some of the party shrink from meeting him, while others will submit to his extortion. In New York, Conkling and the Custom House speaks for Grant, while Fenton and Greeley represent the party out of place and office. In Pennsylvania, Geary snubs Grant's military invasion; while Cameron runs the administration and deals out patronage. Curtin, too, has something to urge against Grant, for violated pledges. Logan watches the chances to carry the vote of Illinois against Grant. Schurz speaks for Missouri, and disowns the policy of the administration. Senator Tipton publicly denounces Grant in Nebraska. In Texas, Louisiana and Alabama, it is unnecessary to make a note of the belligerent attitude of the factions. Bowen leads the Grant party under difficulties in South Carolina; while in Georgia, Governor Bullock has pretty much deserted his administration, and permits it to run itself.

SHE NEVER LIKED INDIANA.—Not a great while since, at a social gathering, a young lady, dressed in the extreme of fashion and glittering with diamonds, sat silent and apart from the rest, taking no part in a conversation purely literary in its character. The gentleman of the house approached her, with the remark;

"No," said the lady, "this is too dry for me. Ain't there nobody here that can flirt?"

"Flirt!" said he. "Ah, I see you are a sort of Cleopatra in disguise."

☞ The Bourbons, with tears in their eyes, still implore the world to believe that if we say that certain constitutional amendments are in force we endorse the spirit which forced them on the country. To illustrate: to say a man has been murdered is to endorse the act of the murderer. The irreconcilables are sorely pressed. They rely upon an ignorance and blindness which, to the credit of the South be it said, do not exist outside of their own thin and scattered ranks.—Anonymous.

The several departments will be under the immediate supervision of the Principals, who will devote whatever of energy and ability they may possess, to the discipline, culture and refinement of their pupils.

The government of the school will be kind, uniform, and decided; resort to force being made only when appeals to the pride, self-respect, and honor of the student are unavailing. A detailed report of the Female Department will recite to the Male Principals. No deduction will be made for absence unless in case of protracted sickness. Governor Bullock.

Under the head of "Personal Intelligence" in the Chicago Times of August the 29th, is the following item: "Governor Rufus B. Bullock, of Georgia, left the Sherman House on yesterday for California."

Books, Pamphlets, Music.

Lowly Ways; or, the Diary of a Poor Young Lady. From the German. Philadelphia: Claxton, Remsen & Haffelfinger, Publishers. Atlanta: M. Lynch & Co.

This is a beautifully bound little book, and its contents are quite interesting. It is the story of a Christian Life, well told, and we commend the work to the reading public.

This volume is a collection of stories and fables, "drawn from the ample stores of material, at first the heritage of the red man of America, and now the property of the white man, who is alone capable of giving them literary form."

This book will prove highly interesting to the young people. Indian tales have always charm and romance about them. "Iola and the King of the Buffaloes." "The Scarlet Swan." "The Ill-fated Lovers." "The Demon's Compact." "The Two Ghosts," and "Mishasha; the Magician of the Lake," are a few of the stories, which number about thirty.

This is a sixteen page pamphlet, containing the substance of a Lecture to a class of Liberty Hall students. It is of course an able production, proceeding from one of the noblest intellects of this or any other country. It is quite entertaining and will repay any reader for its perusal.

Price—Single copy 15 cents, fifty copies $5 00.

"The Beautiful Days that are Past" and "Three Little Words." New Music, from L. W. Martin, P. O. Box 547, Chicago, Illinois. Atlanta: Phillips & Crew.

Among the newest and best songs are "Three Little Words," by J. A. Butterfield, author of "When You and I Were Young, Maggie," etc., and "The Beautiful Days that are Past," by Frank Howard, author of "Little Barefoot." "Three Little Words" is as sweet as a wild wood-bird's love song. Mr. Howard, in a letter to the publisher, notifying him of the completion of "The Beautiful Days that are Past," says: "I think the song one of the best I have ever written."

On the authority of a young friend, who is herself a sweet singer and appreciates a beautiful song, we pronounce "Three Little Words" and "The Beautiful Days" charming—the latter particularly.

Railroad Situation in Georgia.

Revolutions in commerce are often silent and mysterious in their progress. Those who do not reflect seriously do not know sometimes what makes or destroys their fortunes without effort, or in spite of effort, on their part.

It is probable that great events in the commercial world are soon to change the currents of trade in Georgia. Railroads are fast superceding ships and steamboats. If cotton is compressed before loading, it can be carried by rail to New York, cheaper than by water. How will this fast effect the future of Atlanta and Savannah? May not the cotton trade of Atlanta increase and that of Savannah decrease in a few years on account of this recently discovered advantage? Suppose the Air-Line Railroad finished and proper arrangements made at Atlanta for compressing cotton, will not Atlanta soon become a great cotton market? Look how the Railroads are grappling with this question. Since the Central has leased the Macon and Western, cotton cannot be brought from Macon and other points in middle and lower Georgia for shipment by rail to New York. Mr. Wadley is fighting vigorously the threatened change in the route of cotton.

If nothing is done to checkmate him, he will be master of the situation. But we hear of movements that will greatly damage him and the huge corporation over whose destinies he presides. Large capitalists from New York have taken stock in the Atlanta and Savannah Railroad. They will probably run their road from Atlanta to Monticello, and from thence one fork will go to Macon and one to Milledgeville. The first fork will connect with the Macon and Brunswick Railroad to Brunswick and Savannah, while the other will connect with the Augusta and Macon Railroad, and thus at both termini, will be perfectly independent of Mr. Wadley. By this means cotton will be enabled to come up and go the all-rail route to New York, in spite of the Central Railroad. Other freight will also be at liberty to seek a different channel from that proposed by Mr. Wadley. If this Atlanta and Savannah railroad is built, the profits of the Macon and Western Railroad lease are gone forever. And what is to prevent the construction of this road? Besides the Northern capitalists, the cities of Atlanta and Macon, the Macon and Brunswick Railroad, and the Atlantic and Gulf Railroad are vitally interested.

A little from each of these would easily build the road. The charter of the Atlanta and Savannah Railroad allows it to run virtually as the Directors please, so they connect Atlanta and Savannah. They may run straight through or connect with any other road or roads. Some people think the company will run direct to Savannah from Atlanta, but this is hardly probable. The best paying route is that with the fork at Monticello, and this would hurt Mr. Wadley's companies as much as to run straight to Savannah. Altogether the situation is interesting and great interests are at stake.

Special Correspondence of The Constitution.

Manufacturing Interests--Their Value--Rapid Growth of the Northwest--A Furniture Establishment--Vice-President Colfax.

MILWAUKEE, WIS., August 26, 1871.

Editors Constitution: The promise to write you from the northwest has already been too long neglected, but the more important question is, what can I say from this locality that will interest the readers of THE CONSTITUTION.

The few months we spent in the "Gate City" fully satisfied us that Atlanta has a bright future, if her leading business men and capitalists turn their attention, before it is too late, to the only channel of business that ever has or ever will raise an inland city to the position to which she aspires and may attain. If the golden opportunity of the present is to be improved, manufacturing interests must have the attention of men of enterprise and capital.

Believing that Atlanta possesses both, and knowing that their attention is already turned in the right direction, we have thought that perhaps no subject we could write about would be more interesting than that of manufactures. Thus we propose to redeem our promise by writing specifically of such things as are applicable to Atlanta, and we wish to preface this by saying that these letters will not be simply to fill the column, but will relate only to things coming under our own observation and knowledge, so their value to your readers will consist in their truthfulness.

Having occasion to visit the mammoth Furniture Manufactory and Sales Room of J. F. Burchard, Esq., of this city, who is doing much towards making for the city "name and fame" throughout the country, I was shown the Order Book, in which were written the names of important places in more than a dozen States to which this establishment sends its manufactures. Among them my eye caught that of Atlanta. When I saw the orders of several of her citizens for furniture, it occurred to me that this was all wrong for Atlanta. Thus I decided to write as above indicated, and to Mr. Burchard, who is one of that noble class of men who has worked his way from an apprentice boy to his present position, I am indebted for the following facts relating to his establishment. There are several others in the city and some larger than this. His workshop, or main manufactory, is forty feet front by one hundred and twenty feet deep, three-stories high and is of itself a "Curiosity Shop," showing almost everything in the shape of furniture that the fertile brain of man can design. It also designs a machine to do the work almost to perfection. The establishment has a complete set of modern machinery and a large proportion of the work is done by it; the sales-room, fronting on a prominent street, is 40 by 100 feet, five stories high. Mr. Burchard makes a speciality of the better grades of parlor, library, chamber and office furniture.

Library and office furniture from this establishment has a wide reputation and can be found in almost every city from New York to New Orleans. The stock in store is usually about $60,000 and the annual sales about twice that amount. The capital invested is about $50,000 yielding not less than 30 per cent. per annum. The number of men employed is about one hundred, who, with their families, add at least five hundred to the population of the city, occupying forty to fifty houses and patronizing other branches of business in proportion.

While in Atlanta we were often asked, "How do you account for the rapid growth of the Northwest, and for the towns and cities springing up almost in a day?" There is but one true answer—the North west works for the Northwest. When a town is laid out facilities are started for supplying its wants within itself. Just so long as Atlanta and other Southern cities send away their orders for things they might as well manufacture at home, to just that extent do they contribute towards building up other points at their own expense. A furniture establishment like the one described would do more towards building up Atlanta than five times the amount of capital invested in merchandise. Start manufactories, and all the various branches of trade will follow—the one making the other more profitable. To make manufacturing profitable and creditable, the wares produced must be first-class, using only the best materials, employing the best workmen. This, Mr. Burchard tells me, is the secret of the success and prominence of the furniture trade of this city, which is known in the markets of fifteen States and always in demand.

Vice President Schuyler Colfax is a large stockholder, and has been recently elected Vice President of a large furniture manufactory at South Bend, Indiana. As he seems determined to have Vice Presidency to overpower him upon being promoted from the political stock jobbing company to the more honorable pursuit of manufacturing.

The weather is quite cool for August; business unusually dull, except in the political market, which is abundantly supplied and prices rising.

Yours respectfully, W. G.

FASHIONS FOR SEPTEMBER.

What Is and What Is Not Fashion.

[CONCLUDED.]

LARGE BONNETS.

Every one is discussing a return to the three-story, and small seattle bonnets, but there are two reasons to doubt. One is the fact that ladies are still wearing abroad the small bonnets of last year. The other, that intelligent milliners won't be aware that they cannot afford to give such odds to the round hat. Twenty years ago round hats were hardly known. It was the big bonnet or nothing for the girls of seventeen, as well as the woman of seventy. After round hats were introduced, the bonnets were cut down until they become mere head-dresses, and the woman of seventy really had less covering for her head than a girl of seventeen.

What we want now, in addition to the round hats, is at least two distinctive styles in bonnets—one crowning with grace and beauty the still youthful head of the matron, the other quiet and protective for the women just middle age.

The round hat is now an established and very useful fact. An absurdly large or monstrously ugly bonnet can never again obtain a foothold, because there are always the pretty and convenient round hats to fall back upon.

A "cottage" bonnet of a very pretty and becoming shape, and a soft cap crowned style with rim or curtain, are in preparation. The Gypsey has almost disappeared.

BLACK CASHMERE AND ALAPACCA SUITS,

particularly the latter, are made very plainly. Plaitings and ruffings have disappeared, except upon the lower skirt, and even upon this they are now often replaced by bands.

Cashmere is not unfrequently trimmed with Soustach fringe, or a thin lace with handsome guipure lace, and a passementern or gimp heading, but Alapacca and Mohair are finished with cross-cut bands of the same, piped with heavy silk, and the narrower the bands and the more there of them, the finer they are. Some bands are graduated in width, others are of uniform width, upon the under and upper skirt. Three upon the skirt, and two upon the polonaise, is the common number, but five below and three above are better. And there are some handsome suits of Otter Alapacca and fine Mohair made with seven bands on the lower skirt and five upon the upper.

A GLIMPSE OF WINTER.

Suits in cloth velous and other warm fabrics will be worn during the coming winter, without doubt, but they will be less strictly adhered to than for the past two winters. The truth is, while very well adapted to the mild winter of a Southern climate they afford hardly any protection against the region of the North. Lining the jacket with flannel assisted somewhat to break the force of ordinary cold weather, but a piercing east wind or a driving snow storm requires stronger defenses. Northern ladies, of small means, therefore, who cannot revel in silk quilted velvet or elder lined furs, will be glad to have English cloth pelisses with or without capes, in addition to the handsome reversible water proof cloth, which form a most protective garment with cape and hood, and one not at all to be despised for occasional excursions and especially for country wear.

Of course, we shall have a royal garment of velory, will take the form of a long, ample polonaise and be richly trimmed with heavy imperial fringes and soutache or embroidery of wonderful delicacy and beauty. But it is pleasant to know that we shall not be obliged to freeze, if we cannot afford so elegant a garment.

FLOWERS AND COLORS.

The coming season is expected to be gorgeous in toilettes, and moreover it is thought these will be of the most distinctive character. Dark, neutral and plain for street purposes, varied by glimpses of the tartan, but light and lovely in tint, in lace, in trailing flowers for evening wear.

Over dresses worn over flush pink, pale blue and lightest pearl gray will be made of fine organdy valenciennes lace and insertions. Flowers will be used profusely in trails, not in bunches, mantled upon stems, and less upon velvet and ribbon, than was the case last year.

VENETIAN COLLARS.

Some exquisite Venetian collars have been made of fine valenciennes instead of point, and the effect upon velvet is much softer, but unfortunately valenciennes thickens somewhat in the most careful washing, while point can be cleaned to look quite new.

OSTRICH FEATHERS.

These ornaments have attained a rank of their own, which is almost independent of fashion. Like real lace, diamonds and old china, their value is the same whatever a passing caprice of La Mode may dictate as to present styles. Real ostrich plumes, are therefore, very costly, but they are the cheapest feather ornament in the long run, because they will clean and dye and re-dye, and always be unapproachable. Ostrich plumes are highly appreciated by American women of culture and refinement, where tastes it must be said tend generally in the esthetic in art and ornament but they are ever always prepared for the tricks put upon them by dealers. The feathers of the American vulture are quite as often bought for ostrich as the real, and not unfrequently two or three clever splicings will produce a plume of unusual length and apparent beauty, which is sold for three times its real value. In buying a costly feather, therefore, it is well to look out for the slightest indication of want of evenness and perfection, and to make important purchases as a rule of those who have a reputation to sustain and can therefore be relied upon.

SKIRTS.

No gathers are to be tolerated in skirts; the fulness is plaited into the waist. No bindings are used for the bottom of skirts; the material is simply hemmed upon the lining.

Shoulders are still cut high, and sleeves shaped at the top like those of a man's coat. The demi-flowing with a pleat and bows for ornament are the popular style.

The close cut coat sleeve with an open or flowing sleeve will be the favorite style this winter, particularly for out-door garments.

"Melon" pleated waists and pleated Garibaldi's will be retained for plain delaines and merino for house dresses.

Gloves to match the suit are worn in the street. Very light tints remain the style for dress occasions.

JENNIE JUNE.

From the West Point Shield.

Party.

The young people of West Point had a very pleasant and agreeableable "surprise" at the elegant residence of Mr. Frank Lanier, on last Wednesday night. Mr. and Mrs. Lanier who know so well how to entertain the young, spared no effort to make the occasion pleasant, and from the report of all present they succeeded admirably, for all unite in saying that it was one of the most agreeable and memorable affairs of the season.

The evening was one of those which seem especially to have been for such occasions. The queen of night asserted her silent reign in all her regal splendor, and the stars which Byron calls "the poetry of heaven," shed their silver light in unison and harmony with the scene, which was indeed calculated to draw forth poetry, sentiment and love, from the most utilitarian breast.

* * * * * * *

But we fear we are too sentimental for a married man, so we will close by stating that an enthusiastic young man said to us that although he enjoyed himself going, and while there, it was not until his return, he reached the acme of bliss, that adorable state where, in the language of the latest Atlanta poet who dedicates his effusions to some of our West Point girls,

To whisper words of love be tried,
But the [illegible] her hand for—

MIDNIGHT DISPATCHES.

LOUISIANA.

NEW ORLEANS, September 3.—An official note from Dr. Russell, Secretary of the Board of Health, states that there is not a case of yellow fever in New Orleans. The Picayune on the sanitary state of the streets says, that it is a providential interposition, perhaps, that has kept sickness from our doors. The health of the city has been preserved in the face of the most utter disregard of sanitary precautions. The canals are stagnant with impurity, and the vegetation of green and rank covers their surface, and decay and fester beneath the hot rays of the sun. Pools of fetid water, the receptacles of the dead animals and sweepings of the Levees are scattered over the Batture property, reeking with pestilence and filling the air with sickening ordors. In some localities the citizens are compelled to close their doors and windows and endure a want of ventilation and the excessive heat of the summer nights that the noisome smells from the streets may be excluded. All branches of the city as well as of the State government are characterized by imbecility, corruption, fraud and violence. The grand jury in reporting the condition of the Boy's House of Refuge, state that the treatment of the inmates by Henry, the Superintendent, and Schmidt, assistant, should be stigmatised as brutal and ruffianly in the extreme, and the sooner a jail wall is placed between society and Messrs. Henry and Schmidt the better it will be for society.

Judge Abell, of the First District Court, calls the attention of the grand jury to the action of State Treasurer Dubuclet in refusing to pay the original creditors of the State, and compelling them to sell their claims to his friends.

Abell says, the State Treasury, once the pride of the State and financial agent of her creditors, has been literally turned over to tax gatherers, brokers, shavers and hangers-on. I have presided long in this court, and have some idea of the depredation and plunder of burglars, thieves, etc., and am satisfied that the officials of the State have in two years plundered the State of more than all the thieves, etc. For the last quarter of a century fraud, speculation, oppression, extortion and black-mailing is reported to, in a most unscrupulous manner. The millions raised by the two per cent. tax, and the vast amount of licenses will be absorbed, at least one-half of it being consumed by corrupt officials and merciless brokers, and those official economists who manage, out of a salary of less than ten thousand dollars, to save a quarter of a million. He regards the laws inadequate, with the present jury system, to check or punish these officials, and advises the wise men of the State to counsel together for its redemption, and in conclusion, says the darkest page in the history of the State is now being made up in darkness, which I repeat, when deciphered, will show present bankruptcy and perhaps future repudiation. The great criminals who are destroying the future of this State, may for the present be too strong for the imperfect laws upon the subject, too corrupt to fear a jury one-half of whom can neither read nor write, but they may yet meet the frowns and indignation of an injured people and be forced to enjoy their ill-gotten gains beyond their sight.

CALIFORNIA.

SAN FRANCISCO, September 2.—The China mail steamer Alaska has arrived, thirty-six days from Hong Kong. Her cargo includes 54,665 packages of tea, the largest quantity ever landed from one vessel in an American port.

China and Japan are quiet.

The British war steamer Ring Dove has returned from Corea with two Englishmen, captured from the wreck of the Chusan. They had been kindly treated. No indignity was offered them. A German reported by the Chinese as captured at the same time was found to have been left with the Chinese, who, it is supposed, murdered him, and invented the story of his capture by the Coreans to conceal their crime.

Shanghai papers publish authenticated letters from the Corean government to the commander of the United States steamer, Wachusett, when that ship went up the river in 1868, to inquire after the crew of the ship Gen. Sherman. The letter is friendly and conciliatory to the last degree. Had it been received by the commander at the time it was intended to reach him, subsequent bloodshed would never have occurred. The letter was delayed for a few hours, and in the meanwhile the Wachusett sailed without it.

The German iron schooner Valador has been wrecked in the Corean straights. The crew escaped in the boats, and were picked up, after enduring great hardships.

Japanese politics are quiet. Tea crops are abundant. The silk product is from fifty to one hundred per cent. greater than that of the past year and of superior quality, but high prices check operations.

Advices from Tucson, Arizona, of August 26th, announce that a new and rich silver mine has been discovered near Prescott.

Those who propose to enter into its organization are requested to meet at James' Chapel after service this morning to arrange the preliminaries for completing the organization.

ATLANTA HIGH SCHOOL.—This institution, under the direction of Rev. W. M. Jones and E. O. Rees, A. M., is situated at the corner of Luckie and Walton streets. In the primary and preparatory departments a thorough knowledge of each lesson is required, as habits of careless preparation contracted at this stage often adhere to the pupil during his whole course. The success of this institution has been gratifying.

SELECT SCHOOL.—Rev. Mr. Rockwell's school for females resumes to-morrow. The school room is situated on Pryor street between Wheat and Houston, and is well ventilated and supplied with improved school furniture. With an enlarged experience of over thirty years in teaching, Mr. Rockwell is qualified to teach young ladies or misses. His past deserves encouragement and we hope to see his school largely patronized.

"THE STRICTEST ECONOMY."—We learn that when the question was asked one of the parties charged with defrauding the State out of the rove, from the State Road, how it was possible for him to make a fortune of $15,000 or $20,000 in two years, on a salary of $1,800 per annum, and support his family out of his salary and start a bankrupt, he replied in a succinct manner, "by using the strictest economy."

SAUNDERS, GOODWIN & MILLER.—In another column will be found the business card of the above firm. Saunders, Goodwin & Miller, Cotton Factors and Commission Merchants, 146 Bay street, Savannah, Ga., and 84 South street, Baltimore, Md. The members of this firm are young and enterprising business men, and their house ranks among the first in Savannah for integrity and promptness in all their dealings. The first bale of cotton of the new crop received at Savannah this year was consigned to them.

GRAND FAIR.—The Fair of the Atlanta Agricultural and Industrial Association will begin at Oglethorpe Park on the 16th of October and continue for five days. Ample provisions are made for the comfort of over 20,000 visitors. Ten thousand dollars worth of premiums offered. Arrangements have been concluded with most of the Railroad Companies whereby passengers and freights will be brought to the fair and returned at half rates. Every preparation is being made to make the coming fair the grandest of the season.

H. I. KIMBALL.—We recently published a paragraph under the head of Savannah Advertiser, claiming that it was reported at Washington that the above gentleman had failed, etc.; and a second dispatch stated that the information was derived from Georgia papers on their way to find Kimball.

Yesterday a well-known and wealthy citizen of Atlanta reported to us that he had just returned from New York, where he met H. I. Kimball by appointment to make a settlement with him, which was most satisfactory, and that the business of the gentleman in New York, termed to be in perfect order.

The name of the gentleman who furnishes this information, we are authorized to state to any one who desires to know it. He will be recognized as one of our well-known and thrifty citizens, a planter above

OGLETHORPE FREE SCHOOL.—The Oglethorpe Free School, located at the corner of Forsyth and Walton streets, and [illegible] will open to-morrow morning. Tuition, books, stationery, etc., free. Mrs. A. P. Hill, the Principal, is noted for her intellectual culture and instructive ability, while Mrs. H. M. Colquitt, Mrs. J. C. Butler and Miss A. Hoyle, her assistants, have reduced teaching children to a science which wins and charms their pupils. This school is doing a noble work for the orphan.

GRAND CONCERT.—The students from Fisk University at Nashville, Tennessee, who came here yesterday morning with the colored excursion, will give a concert at the City Hall on to-morrow night. The programme embraces a variety of vocal and instrumental music, new and popular songs, duets, quartettes and choruses, with selections from the cantata of "Esther" and the "Haymakers." The object of the concert is to stimulate a deeper interest in the cause of popular education. Vocal and instrumental music is taught in the University. Of course the City Hall will be crowded. The colored people of Atlanta will nearly turn out en masse.

THE RURAL SOUTHERNER.—The September number of the Rural Southerner was placed on our table on Friday evening. The table of contents for the present number for variety and value excels that of any previous number, while its typographical execution and general make up, renders it the handsomest agricultural periodical in the country. It is invaluable to the farmer and general reader, presenting a mass of information in an attractive form. The Southerner will be sent to any address the balance of this year for twenty-five cents. Send on your dollar for one year's subscription to the Rural Southerner, Atlanta.

"NEW DEPARTURE."—Under this head will be found in another column the card of M. Heyman & Bro., wholesale dealers in boots and shoes. These enterprising gentlemen took a "new departure" from Americus and have opened in store 16 in the Kimball House on Decatur street. They have opened with a large stock, all grades and latest styles of shoes for ladies, misses and children's use. The business experience of Messrs. Heyman & Bro. in this State, and their connections with Eastern manufacturers, enable them to give satisfaction as to both quality and price. All that they ask is a trial. Call and see their fine stock any way. We extend a cordial welcome to this firm, and wish them greater success than their most sanguine anticipations depict.

T. M. HORSEY & BRO.—We are pleased to learn that Colonel Adair has succeeded in renting one of those fine new stores in the Kimball building, fronting on Decatur street, to Thomas M. Horsey & Bro., of Charleston, South Carolina, who will open on the 15th of the present month a magnificent stock of hats for the jobbing trade.

Mr. Horsey has been a well established hat dealer in Charleston for the last twenty-five years, and has an acquaintance with the merchants of Georgia and Alabama that needs no indorsement from us. Thus it is the new order of transportation is changing all the old notions of trade.

Twenty years ago the idea of a wholesale hat store in upper Georgia would have been an absurdity. Now we have stores of all classes of merchandise in Atlanta, with a pro pect of many more this fall.

While we welcome all, it is peculiarly gratifying to welcome such worthy and well known gentlemen as T. M. Horsey & Bro.

COBB COUNTY HEARD FROM—THE ATLANTA FAIR AND SPEECH FROM COL. T. C. HOWARD.

Mr. Local: You promised that THE CONSTITUTION would not altogether ignore Cobb county and her interests, but that some time you would forget that Atlanta was the "whole world" and would recognize other sections and interests as having an existence, and especially as one of your most talented, patriotic and best working men, Col. T. C. Howard, has fresh with us [illegible], I have concluded to tell you something of what is going on up here. On short notice, a large, and for us, most respectable assemblage of our thinking men and farmers met in Green's Hall, attracted by the announcement that Col. T. C. Howard would address them in the interest of the Atlanta Industrial Association. It was not that he was from Atlanta, nor was it the Atlanta Industrial Association that called us together but to hear one of our great favorites, Colonel T. C. Howard, who talkes to the Southern heart that we not. We were not disappointed. For one hour we listened, as he presented with logic [illegible] tion existing and evidencing by truth demonstrating the necessity for agricultural associations, the varied benefits resulting, the immense resources of our beloved Georgia, her means and the way to recuperation and when he had captivated and captured, then he held us bound to your Fair in October, expecting huge things.

By the use of such men's brains and exertions Atlanta has grown to be the city of the South. You may well be proud of Colonel T. C. Howard—send him back to us—we want to hear him again, and if we are over ourboard in town, we want some of the drippings from his vast storehouse of knowledge.

One and all of us, Sallie and the children, Bill, Tom, Jake and all the rest of the family will be down on the 10th of October at the Fair of the Atlanta Agricultural Association. Make room, we are coming. CORN.

Business Cards on Georgia, Savannah & R. R.—Col. A. O. Bacon, Chairman, made the following report touching Gen'l Gartrell, deceased:

The committee appointed to give expression to the feelings of this Court and Bar in relation to the death of Samuel Reader, Esq., beg leave to make the following report:

We approach the duty assigned us with heartfelt sadness. At the opening of the last term of this Court, Mr. Reader occupied his accustomed place at this Bar, full of life and hopeful promise. No one of us supposed that the spotted pinion of the Destroying Angel was already [illegible] upon him. Manhood young and ardent and devoted to his profession, and a long career of usefulness and honor seemed to be before him. But alas! this life is full of disappointment and sorrow. Were it not for a divine revelation, it would be an inexplicable mystery. We might well question both the goodness and the wisdom of God, did we believe that the grave is its goal and its end. Emphatically true, it is that "we spend our years as a tale that is told." They roll by like a mystic dream—like a panoramic vision whose impressions fade away amid the [illegible] realities of death.

Our brother was taken away suddenly. He had little premonition of his coming. We well remember the shock felt by us all when the sad and startling announcement was made that he was dead. We had a few days before beheld him in apparent health, and had not speculated him with the thought of death. We were accustomed to regard him as one who, having already attained an eminent position, was still rising in public esteem, and destined to reach yet higher distinction amongst his fellow-men. His death was, therefore, an event for which we were wholly unprepared. Endeared to us by his social companionship—his generous disposition—his honorable professional conduct, and his exemplary life, no experience peculiar pain in offering this tribute to his memory.

Mr. Hunter was a native of Bibb county.

He was born on the 16th of May, 1831. Descended from parents of signal piety and eminent private and social virtues, his early training and education received careful and constant attention. He was made acquainted in childhood with the doctrines and duties of the Christian religion, as revealed in the sacred Scriptures and exemplified in the lives of his father and mother.

He entered Oglethorpe University at a comparatively early age, and became a graduate of that institution in 1851. Returning home, he shortly thereafter entered the office of the Hon. Washington Poe, of Macon, as a law student, and in 1856 attended a course of lectures in the law school at Cambridge, Mass.

In the year 1854 he was admitted to the bar and became associated in the practice of his profession with Messrs. Stubbs & Hill. He remained with them about two years, and then opened an office of his own. His talent, energy and close attention to business soon brought him into notice, and secured the confidence and favor of the community. His practice continued to grow and his reputation as a lawyer to increase until the commencement of hostilities in the spring of 1861, when he promptly volunteered to serve as a private in the Confederate Army. He entered the service as a member of the Macon Volunteers, and retained his connection with that company until the latter part of the year 1862, when he was promoted to the office of Captain, and, in consequence of impaired health, transferred, from [illegible] assigned to duties of [illegible] character. In the army, he displayed the qualities of a true and faithful soldier. He was always at the post of duty, however perilous. His connection with the Confederate military service continued until the close of the disastrous contest, when he—like the other brave men who had battled and suffered for the South—was forced, with a heavy heart, to lay aside the weapons of warfare, and to accept the inevitable necessities of defeat. After the termination of the war he resumed the practice of his profession, and devoted himself almost unremittingly to his duties, until stricken by the disease which resulted in his death. He was a man of clear and vigorous intellect, and of sound and discriminating judgment. His professional opinions were seldom erroneous, and always held in high esteem by both Court and Bar. His powers, as an advocate, were, by no means, of an ordinary character.

He was finest in speech, and always forcible and impressive. When he died, few men of his age, had more promising professional prospects. Wiser than most young lawyers of talent and growing reputation, he indulged no political aspirations. He was content to rise in his profession. To achieve success and distinction in that, all his energies were vigorously employed, and his efforts were richly rewarded.

Mr. Hunter was not deficient in literary acquirements. His appreciation of the true and the beautiful, not unfrequently induced him to turn aside temporarily, from the severer duties of his office, and find enjoyment and needful relaxation in reading of a more entertaining character.

We appreciate the delicacy of speaking of his private and domestic life, and yet it was characterized by so much that is worthy of admiration, that we hope we shall be pardoned for making a passing reference to it. On the 22d day of December, 1863, he married an accomplished lady, to whom he was devotedly attached, and who still survives to cherish the memory of his love, and to feel the crushing weight of sorrow which his sudden and untimely death has inflicted. He was a most devoted husband and father, and desolate indeed, was that home, so happy whilst he lived, who nhis lifeless remains were born by weeping friends to the silent resting-place of the dead. We mingle our tears with those which flow from the broken hearts of his bereaved family and kindred.

We did them remember that our brother, though dead, "shall live again"—yes, that "he is not dead, but sleepeth."

Let his death testify of that happier life on which he had entered and which shall never end. He had long been a member, and since 1866, a ruling elder of the Presbyterian Church. He lived a life of faith, and when the summons came, he, like a Christian hero, "knowing whom he had believed," calmly and courageously entered the dark "valley of the shadow of death."

We recommend the adoption of the following resolutions:

Resolved, That we will cherish the memory of our deceased and lamented brother, and will strive to imitate his private and professional virtues.

Resolved, That we deeply sympathize with his afflicted family, and request that the Clerk of this Court do transmit to them a copy of these proceedings.

A. O. BACON,
CLIFFORD ANDERSON,
B. HILL,
E. P. LYON,
GEO. W. GUSTIN,
Committee.

B. Hill, Esq., responded briefly seconding the resolutions.

C. J. Lochrane responded for the Court as follows:

Gentleman of the Bar: On behalf of this court, I concur in all that has been so truthfully and eloquently presented by your committee touching the merits and virtures of our deceased brother, Mr. Samuel Hunter. And while we sympathise in the death of those who have been gathered from the maturity of life, rich in the fullness of honors and achievements, we may feel more keenly the loss of those who have been cut down in the bloom of manhood, with all the blossoms of hope still fragrant and clustering around them. My own legal history commences with the memories of the Macon Bar, and I may add, that no Bar in this State contained a higher, nobler, or more honorable association of men, combining the elements of professional merit, and personal worth, than the Bar of the Macon Circuit. To this Bar Mr. Hunter came with a thorough preparation for the discharge of his professional duties. Trained by Stubbs & Hill, he had the opportunity which he improved, of learning habits of industry, patience and promptness of attention to business, and from the outset of his career he felt the influences and reaped the fruits of these advantages. From the start, he gave promise of a life of usefulness. His integrity of character, his application to duty, his honorable dealings with all, and his well marked stability, attracted to him a share of patronage which was both lucrative and co-ordinary. Very soon, however, the storm of war burst in fury over the "land of the lored;" and while the very first drops of the storm were falling, he left his office for the camp and was there for the battle-field. After years of toil and peril, marching in company with death through scenes of strife, he returned, welcomed by the applause of a people who recognized in him a living representative of a sentiment for which all had lost so much, and honoring him in that he was true to it. He resumed again in his profession, and his old clients rallying to him brought forth new ones, and his business soon became prosperous. As a lawyer Mr. Hunter seldom sought display in the court room but the bench always appreciated the careful preparation of his cases, and the public recognized the hopeful promise of a life whose opening was so brightly marked by traits of personal and professional worth. He was unphilosophically a business man; he deferred nothing for to-morrow that could be accomplished to day, and never relying on the illusory powers of genius to supply an excuse for idleness. He labored patiently, and his arguments were clear, pointed and logical, and based upon authority selected by careful discrimination to maintain them. He was endowed by nature with strong common sense, and his life was devoted to its practical application. He did not strain after the ephemeral applause of speech making, but he sought for legal truth and pressed it home with the eloquence and earnestness of conviction.

We may not lift the veil of home, where his loved still mourn their irreparable loss, for he his family relationships let us [illegible] sympathy. Death, never visited a household more unexpectedly, or with more [illegible] than when it entered this home and took away the husband and father. If anything could have strengthened the ties of domestic affection and increased the [illegible] of home, it was the companionship with his young and affianced family.

In these proceedings be placed upon the Minutes and published in the reports of the Court.

Court then adjourned till 9 o'clock A. M.

From the North Georgia Citizen.

Mrs M. L. Fuller.

Previous to this we briefly referred to the death, in Atlanta, of the above mentioned lady, which occurred on the 24th ult. Her funeral sermon will be preached by Rev. Dr. Hornady, of LaGrange, on the first Sabbath in September, at the First Baptist Church in Atlanta.

Mrs Fuller was Miss M. L. Asher, a native of Dade county, Georgia, and only daughter of the late Thomas J. Asher. She was born the 25th day of December, 1843, and in her childhood her father settled in Murray county. She was educated in the bright old Palmetto State, at Greenville, and at the age of seventeen married Captain A. W. Fuller, at present and for many years one of the gentlemanly conductors on the Western and Atlantic Railroad.

Mrs. F. was an earnest christian, a devoted friend, and a loving and tender wife and mother. She has left two dear little children, with their sorely bereaved father, and wandered off to those "hills of light that stretch away toward the heavenly Canaan." There she will find the two angel babes who have been sleeping beneath the violets, with the sunlight shimmering around them and the stars keeping watch with their meek, holy eyes. May the angel mother and the angel children hold "communion sweet" in the land of eternal rest.

"There is nothing so sweet on earth as the heart of a woman in which piety dwells." Such a heart had Mrs. F. Surrounded by every comfort—friends, sweet children and a kind husband, whose cherishing protection gilded her life with a golden glory—she did not forget her Saviour, and when trials and dark days cast their shadows around her, she bowed with sweet, unmurmuring submission to the will of Christ her sovereign Lord. Waiting and looking for the Heavenly Bridegroom, she kept her lamp trimmed and burning, and in her dying hour exclaimed, "I have never been so happy before."

May the bereaved husband and friends ever find comfort in recalling her triumphant departure from earth, not forgetting that through faith in the same Saviour they can meet their loved ones in that calm world where sorrow is never known nor farewells never spoken.

The Order for the Execution of Jesus Christ.

Among the manuscripts which were probably burned in the recent conflagration of the Archiepiscopal Palace at Bourges, in France, the most remarkable was, without doubt, the order for the execution of Jesus Christ, which was the personal property of the family De la Tour d'Auvergne. The order runs thus:

"Jesus of Nazareth, of the Jewish tribe of Juda, convicted of imposture and rebellion against the divine authority of Tiberius Augustus, Emperor of the Romans, having for this sacrilege been condemned to die on the cross by sentence of the judge, Pontius Pilate, on the prosecution of our lord, Herod, Lieutenant of the Emperor in Judea, shall be taken to-morrow morning, the 23d day of the ides of March, to the usual place of punishment, under the escort of a company of the Pretorian guard. The so-called King of the Jews shall be taken out by the Strunean gate. All the public officers and the subjects of the Emperor are directed to lend their aid to the execution of this sentence.

"CAPEL.

☞ The Saratoga belle takes to religion on Sunday. A Chicago Times letter says: "The little creature who took to a straw and cobble, and bet and won a basket of champagne on Harper's fastest filly on Saturday, won't lift her pretty eyes to her adorers on Sunday, but continues in the closest companionship with the gospels whenever she is not in church, declaring that she is a miserable sinner. Yesterday she wore a rose-colored silk, which shimmered through muslins and laces, just as her coquettries are visible through her devotions, but she goes to church to-day in pure white lawn, with a spray of myrtle at her throat, and a bonnet upon which only a cluster of marguerites attest to her knowledge of beauty. What waltzing like the measure and rythm of a perfect poem falls to complete in a partial conquest, reading from the same prayer-book is sure to do at Saratoga. Indeed, I have known a proposal of marriage to be made upon the fly-leaf of a Bible, so irrepressible did the tender emotion become under the influence of a pretty, kneeling figure.—Courier-Journal.

Mrs. Gen. Lee.—A letter from the Rockbridge Battle, speaking of Mrs. Gen. Lee, who is a visitor there, says:

Mrs. Lee has won the hearts of all. She has a cheerful word for every one. Though seeking relief from a chronic malady, she forgets her own ills, and visits in her wheel chair the sick, and ministers by pleasant words of advice and encouragement to all. Bishop Leighton said, on returning from some impressive scene, that "he had met a sermon in the street." The serene faith and active benevolence of this noble lady touches the heart beyond all pulpit oratory.

☞ The Mystery of Music.—What a mystery it is—invisible, yet making the eye shine; intangible, but making the nerves to vibrate; floating between earth and heaven; falling upon this world as if a strain from that above, ascending to that as a thank-offering from ours. It is God's gift, and it is, therefore, not too lofty for His praise; too near to the immaterial to be made the minister of sordid pleasure; too clearly destined to mount upwards to be used for inclining hearts to earth.—Arthur's Italy in Transition.

☞ A poor widow and her little child were sitting together in great want, both feeling the pinch of hunger, and the child looked up into the mother's face and said: "Mother, God won't starve us, will He?" "No, my child," said the mother; "I do not think He will." "But, mother," said the child, "if He does, we will still praise Him as long as we live; won't we mother?" May those who are grey-headed be able to say what the child said, and to carry it out.

☞ Lord Houton, at the Scott Centenary, said of the world's great litterateurs that they have seldom left descendants. England has no Shakspeare, no Milton, no Bacon, no Newton, no Pope, no Byron; Italy has no Dante, no Petrarch, no Alfieri, no Ariosto; Germany has no Goethe, no Schiller; no Heine; France has no Montaigne, no Voltaire, no Descartes.

☞ A little four year old, near Norwalk, Connecticut, was listening on Sunday last to the Bible story of Elijah and the bears. The story was illustrated with a picture of the venerable Elijah going along bareheaded, the bears coming out of the woods, etc. The little one looked at it, and immediately spoke out: "Father, why didn't he put his hat on, and they wouldn't have bothered baldheads?"

☞ The soverignty of Divine grace, and the imparitiality of Divine justice, are points difficult to reconcile; but it is a mercy to know that God has not imposed on us the difficult task; we are commanded to believe, but no where required to unravel such difficulties.

☞ "The Sabbath must be observed as a day of rest. This I do not state as an opinion, but knowing that it has its foundation upon a law in man's nature as fixed as that he must take food or die."—Dr. Willard, of New York City.

☞ "The longer I live the more highly do I estimate the Christian Sabbath, and the more grateful do I feel toward those who insist upon its importance on the 'community.'"—Daniel Webster.

☞ Truth is not always won by hard and long toil. A moment's insight is sometimes worth a life's experience.
